The Keep — Phase 4 directive: the group pages

Read `docs/design.md` first. Reference renders are in `docs/design/group-*.png`. This supersedes the earlier Phase 4 spec: the group home is organized around the week's guide, not a list of questions.

Who it is for

The small group, six to seventeen people, on their phones. They never sign in; the phone holds the link and has tapped a name. Thursday afternoon they come to take a slot and find the address. Thursday evening one of them leads the meeting from the page and the rest follow on theirs. Phone first.

Documents

Three types in the group ring, all versioned like everything else in The Keep.

- `guide` — one per week. Fields: `series` ("Sanctuary"), `week` (4), `title` ("A school for the formation of the saints"), `opening` (leader/people pairs), `readings` (list of references), `reflection` (one sentence), `questions` (list), `closing` (leader/people pairs and leader collects, in order), `source` ("Redeemer's Sanctuary guide, week four, Fall 2026").
- Group settings, stored once — the fixed liturgy that repeats every week: the collect before the reading, the songbook line, the Lord's Prayer, the final collect. The page assembles the evening from the guide and the settings in this order: Opening, Table, Before the reading, Scripture, Reflection, Closing.
- `signup` — one per meeting. Title, date, closes-at, slots in order with label and capacity: Main, Salad, Bread, Dessert, Drinks, or whatever the sheet needs. Leading and hosting are not slots.
- `event` — the next meeting: when, where, leading, notes. Leading is set by the co-leads and is always one of them; Tyler and Kelly always host, so the place is theirs unless the event says otherwise.

Scripture text: resolve each reference to passage text server-side from the translation configured for the group (the mock uses a public-domain text). Show the first two or three verses inline and fold the rest behind "Continue the reading · N verses".

The page, `/group`

One column, reading measure. The order depends on the hour, Richmond time.

Before 5:00 on meeting day, and every other day:

1. Thursday — eyebrow, the date and time in Literata, then Where/Leading/Notes as a definition list, "Add to calendar". Then the sheet, titled Table, with "Closes Thursday 5:00" under it. Slots as hairline rows: label and capacity on the left, names in claim order on the right, empty places drawn as short hairlines up to capacity so a full slot reads as full. The viewer's action is the page's one accent: "Release" on the slot they hold; otherwise "Take this" on the first open slot. Every other open slot gets an outline "Take this"; full slots say "Full" in muted. A phone that has not tapped a name sees one brass link, "Tap your name first", under the sheet title, and each open slot's control reads the same in muted and goes to the claim screen.
2. The guide — eyebrow "Sanctuary · Week four" (muted in this state), the week's title in Literata, an italic line for whoever leads. Then the evening in order, each part under a small-caps heading. Responsive prayers use the two-voice grid from the morning page: "Leader" and "People" as 13px muted labels in a 56px column, Leader text in `text`, People text bold in `text-strong`. Table says what the guide says and links up to the sheet. Each reading is its own heading with the reference, the opening verses, and the fold. Reflection is the sentence in italic, then the questions numbered with the morning-page numeral style. Closing runs leader/people, the collect, the italic songbook line, the Lord's Prayer as People, the final collect. A credit line closes the section.
3. Members — unchanged: name, co-lead marked quietly, the viewer's row marked "you" with "Edit your details"; phone as a tel: link in tabular figures; address; notes in italic. Each optional.

From 5:00 on meeting day until midnight:

1. Tonight — one line: time, place, who leads, a link to members.
2. The guide, with its eyebrow as the page's one accent (the sheet is closed, so there is no action). At Table, one muted line of who brought what.
3. Members.

Other screens

- Claim, "Who are you?": unclaimed names first, one tap each; then "Already on another device · Tap if it is you" with the claimed names and which device; a single confirmation with Back and the brass "Yes, it is me".
- Link landing `/g/<token>`: the mark, the wordmark, "You're in the group.", one brass "Continue". Dead link: the same frame with "This link is no longer the group's. Ask Tyler or a co-lead for the current one." and no button.

Nav

The group shell has its own top bar: the mark and wordmark, then Home, Guide, Sign-up, Calendar, Members; no search, New, or sign-out. Collapsed on the phone to the wordmark and a menu button. Tyler and the co-leads reach this page from Group in the main nav with controls added; each section eyebrow leaves a 44px slot on its right for an Edit affordance. Don't design the controls.

Rules carried over

The accent is text, a hairline, or one filled control, and appears once per page. No counts, badges, red, urgency, or greeting by name. Hairlines, not cards. Literata for the guide; Source Sans for everything else; tabular figures on every time and phone number; touch targets 44px. The page carries Redeemer's words in The Keep's face; none of their artwork or type.

Acceptance

- On a phone, Thursday at 3pm: the sheet is above the fold after the meeting details; one brass control; taking and releasing a slot works without sign-in.
- The same phone at 7pm: the guide is first, the eyebrow is brass, the sheet is gone, and the leader can read the whole evening top to bottom without leaving the page.
- A new week's guide is entered by filling the seven fields; the fixed liturgy is not re-entered.
- Every reading expands inline.
